HERE AND THERE IN BUCKS COUNTY TOWNS

Activities of Interest To All in The Various Communities

GLEANED BY SCRIBES

Unable to get assurance that a fire truck ordered some months ago can be delivered soon, Silverdale Fire Company, in session a few nights ago, cancelled the order, and considered the advisability of placing an order for another make of truck.

The firm with which the company placed its order for the truck announced that delivery could not be assured until the latter part of next year or early in 1948.

The Seagraves pumper now in use has been in service for 16 years, and the firemen feel, because of its condition, it should be replaced, and for this reason it was decided to look for another.

man of the Bucks County Price

Mary A. Karp, Farragut avenue, Bristol, claim $50 for overcharge on oranges and onions.
Isidore Moriel, Franklin street, Bristol, claim of $53.22 for over-charge on chuck roast of beef.

Bringing the activities of the season to a close, members of New Hope Junior Women's Club, in session at the New Hope Recreation Center, Thursday evening, were given annual reports by committee chairmen, welcomed five new members and received the resignations of four others because they have become eligible to senior club membership. The meeting was featured by installation of the recently elected officers. This was in charge of Mrs. Helen Ely Malpas, the senior

A SUMMARY OF THE NEWS

Reports and rumors, creating uneasiness, settled around the Foreign Ministers' meeting in Paris, which was in recess yesterday. American delegates heard of Russian troop concentrations on the German-Czech border and the massing of Red Army and Yugoslav forces toward Trieste and Yugoslavia's northern and western borders. British and American troops were said to have been placed on the alert.

According to a Tass dispatch, Russia made several conciliatory proposals to "facilitate" agreement at the last Paris conference and it is now up to the United States and Britain to make some.

The Foreign Ministers' deputies prepared for their principals a codified and documented list of agreements on an Italian peace treaty.

General Mikailovitch denied prosecution charges that he had committed war crimes by permitting the murder of captured soldiers and civilians.

A strong state, with a President exercising broad powers, a two-chamber Parliament and carefully-balanced executive, legislative and judiciary departments, was advocated for France by General de Gaulle

TRAGEDY OF BRITAIN

One of the most fascinating subjects in history is the study of "leaders" who get run over by the social and political forces they help unleash.

In the French Revolution, one after another of the early chieftains eventually went to the guillotine they had helped set up, because they tried to curb some of the excesses of the movement they aided in starting.

Many other such examples can be found. The legend of Frankenstein's monster destroying its creator has a special application to innumerable historical events.

High tragedy of this sort appears to be in the making in England.

Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin, one of the ablest and possibly the most eloquent of the political figures who talked the British people into discarding Churchill and "capitalism" and embarking on State Socialism, is face to face with realities in two broad fields.

He has collided with the vast difference between what is wished and what is possible; and is up against the equally distressing fact that political subordinates, unimpeded with responsibility, may disregard the distinction.

The Labor Government, in which Bevin is a key factor, has promised to perform an impossible miracle—to restore national prosperity and individual security to a land which has been going down hill for two generations.

This basic dilemma in which Bevin finds himself has resulted in his facing equally distressing predicaments in every direction he tries to move.

In foreign affairs, for example, having helped destroy the Churchill program, he now finds that the policy of so-called "imperialism" is the only one under which England has, not so much a chance to regain her one-time proud position, but even to survive.

Mikhailovitch Denies Mass Slaughtering

Belgrade—Dr. J. Mikhalovitch, Yugoslavia's Chetnik general, denied today that he and his wartime followers were mass slaughterers.
Mikhalovitch told the military court trying him on charges of treason and collaboration with the Axis that he was innocent on both counts.

He swore he had fought honorably against the enemy, and declared he was helpless to prevent reported massacres by his Chetnik fighters.
The bearded general stoutly denied he had slain thousands of Moslems, as the court charged, and termed "false" stories that his men had flogged and killed tens of thousands of Marshal Tito's Partisans.

Mikhalovitch caused a mild sensation in the red-starred court room by revealing he was the famed "phantom Chief Black Three" who applied Balkan justice during the war when the BBC ordered him to liquidate a traitor with the code name Z.

Jewish Dynamiters Blast 10 Bridges in Palestine

Jerusalem—Jewish dynamiters blasted at least 10 bridges in Palestine today and assaulted police outposts with tommygun fire and bombs.
British police and troop units immediately swung into action to halt the greatest wave of terrorism ever to hit the Holy Land.
Marauding bands not only set off explosives to cripple vital transportation links—they planted road mines on bridge approaches to make repair efforts hazardous work.

L'I L ARTHUR

To oldtimers the news that Jack Johnson has been killed in an automobile accident brings memories flooding back of the days when L'il Arthur reigned supreme over the prize ring as the first Negro heavyweight champion of the world. Johnson was the center of a tempestuous controversy from the time he took the title from Tommy Burns at Sydney, Australia, on the day after Christmas in the year 1908 until he lost it to the gigantic Jess Willard under the hot sun of Havana on April 5, 1915.

Those were rough, tough days in the prize ring and Johnson was one of the roughest and toughest. His death in a speeding automobile crashing into a light pole was characteristic of a reckless life. A phenomenal fighter and the first of his race to climb to the top rung in boxing, he spent his money as fast as it came, drove his automobiles as fast as they would go, and got into repeated trouble with the law. There was an intensive search for a "white hope" to dethrone him. When Jess Willard finally took the title the cry went up that L'il Arthur had taken a dive and Johnson himself later confessed that he had thrown the fight, although he later denied this.

They were stirring times. But, insofar as the prize ring was concerned, one would hardly call them the "good old days" or be tempted to go back to them again. Both prize fighting and Negro champions have changed vastly in deportment if not in fighting skill since Johnson ruled the roost. Even those who look back with nostalgia to the first "battle of the century" and the time when prize fights rather than industrial and international strife were first in the public mind will find it hard to prove that the change is not for the better.

CONTROL DELUSION

Universal public desire to provide homes for veterans resulted in Congress, on recommendation of the President, enacting accommodating legislation with vast subsidies. The program got off to an auspicious start but now is tied up by shortages of materials caused by strikes and unrealistic pricing that is channeling it into black markets.

Surveys throughout the country disclose that thousands of veterans' houses would be ready for occupancy but for lack of such items as piping for utilities and plumbing fixtures. Construction was begun on tens of thousands of other houses but advanced little further than digging of the basements before running out of materials.

The veterans' housing program so far amounts to a grand stage play without substantial results. Government price and material control policies are obstructing production of home-building necessities. In other times the nation relied on the law of supply and demand and got the homes it needed. This has been replaced by the control delusion which produces little except a mirage.

ECHOES OF THE PAST

(By Courier Staff Member)

Review of the news as it appeared in the Bucks County Gazette issue dated at Bristol Aug. 25, 1892. The Gazette, a weekly newspaper published in Bristol, was discontinued following its merger with the Courier.

Jacob Scheisser, of the Park Avenue Wheelmen, on Saturday won the five-mile road race of the Park Avenue Wheelmen, making the distance in 15 minutes, and 36 seconds.

The Scholsser brothers and Harry Lancaster left Bristol, Monday, on their wheels for Ocean Grove, N. J., making the entire distance in five hours and 35 minutes, total seven hours and 39 minutes with stops.

The basement of St. Mark's parochial school building is being prepared for occupancy of the St. Mark's Literary Society. The basement will be divided into four rooms which will be neatly and comfortably furnished. The expense of the improvement will be in the neighborhood of $1,000.

(Following items from Gazette of Sept. 15, 1892):

The Mt. Holly Fair was poorly attended by Bristol people this year. The Trenton exhibition, being much more convenient of access, catches the crowd from this neighborhood.

A social club has been formed in Bristol, called "The Air Tight Social," composed of young men of Bristol, with the following officers: President, Charles Humphries; vice president, John Harrison; secretary, Horace Young; treasurer, Charles Wright; steward, Al Lawson. They have rented the store room next to Muncie's barber shop on Mill street. The organization was completed on Tuesday evening through the efforts of Charles Humphries.

At the regular monthly meeting of the burgess and council, all the members were present except Frank Green.

The finance committee, through John C. Maule, chairman, reported that the revenue for the year would not exceed the appropriations more than $300, and that there would not be sufficient funds to macadamize Bath street from Buckley street, unless appropriations for other purposes were transferred.

Having joined in a campaign against Churchill on the basis of that leader's "suspicion" of Russia, he now realizes that Russia deserves even more suspicion than Churchill showed. The Russian bear is a menace to British sovereignty as great or even greater than that of Hitlerite Germany.

Having derided the United States (for campaign purposes) as a "capitalistic" nation, Bevin's party now is up against the fact that their only hope for financing their program is through borrowing American capital.

Pro-Russianism, both in the field of ideology and of international politics, in the present state of world affairs, demands coldness towards the United States; yet the outlook most clearly shows the picture Churchill already has painted—that Great Britain, to survive against Russia's expansion, must rely on financial and military aid from this nation.

On the homefront also there is a dilemma of equally grave consequences to Bevin's peace of mind. The Labor Party promised the British people all the advantages which could be enjoyed by a prosperous people; in effect, that they would live the life of Riley without having to work for it. Now it is most painfully clear that whatever the Britons get will be the result of labor and sacrifice — of "Blood, Sweat, Toil and Tears" applied, not as Churchill did, to the war, but to many years of peace.

Bevin himself sees all these dilemmas, and has sought to grasp them by the horn which offers most for Britain's future. Unfortunately for him, this has swung him out of step with his party. Because he has sought realistically to face true needs, he is being accused of abandoning his party's promises; and because he helped make those promises, he cannot now reply that they are impossible of fulfillment.

Thus far Bevin's eloquence, plus an engaging frankness, has helped him pass the crises. Mainly, however, he has simply succeeded in stalling off the evil day of decision. But a certain desperation is creeping into his remarks.

The clash between reality and promise becomes progressively worse. The bitter disappointment of the British people themselves is being reflected in equally bitter recriminations.

Steadily growing is the list of matters which members of the Socialist group would like to see done, but which Bevin declares must be postponed or abandoned.

Repeatedly he has been forced to explain the gradual retirement of Britain's military forces from critical areas of Europe on the basis that the empire's finances do not permit such costs. The effect of such withdrawal, of course, is to place a larger share of the responsibility where the hot-heads of Bevin's party would rather not see it—on the shoulders of Uncle Sam.

This, of course, is a fundamental point of difference between Bevin, who has to meet facts as they exist, and the starchy-eyed visionaries of his party, who want realities disregarded when they interfere with dreams.

An inevitable end product of the Socialism doctrine as applied to Great Britain is enmity to the United States. This has flared up repeatedly; at the moment when even the Labor Party leaders were most eager for American money to finance their nationalization, few of them were able to restrain their unfriendliness to the "banker" they sought to do business with. Terms of a "loan" which is virtually a gift were described as stringent and miserly.

More and more, Bevin's public appearances are becoming the occasion for him to be interrogated by the lieutenants of his party. His attitude towards the United States has been challenged repeatedly.

His recent declaration in favor of the proposed American 25-year disarmament treaty with Germany, which is strongly opposed by Russia and therefore questionable in the minds of the Communist-sympathizers so numerous in the Labor Party, stirred a new storm of such questions.

Americans who seek to understand the undercurrents of events in their own and other lands, would do well to think over carefully the reply with which Bevin silenced (temporarily, at least) this line of criticism.

"Russia is socialized," he declared. "We are partly socialized. Americans can believe in private enterprise. . . . America may be a capitalistic country, but that does not mean that she will always be. THERE ARE GREAT FORCES MOVING IN THE UNITED STATES, AND WHEN THEY MOVE THEY MOVE VERY QUICKLY."

This is the most explicit statement yet made officially by representatives of the British government that the political future of the British Labor Party demands the encouragement of a Socialistic revolution in the United States.

Prominent Langhorne Woman Murdered

off the top of the steps he threw a lighted match down into the kerosene and then closed the basement door. It was then that he went around to the front of the house, tuffed rags into a window which he broke and ignited them, it is said he had the confession states.

Shelton then went to the field where his father was plowing and at noon he and his father returned to the house. The elder Shelton saw smoke coming out of the chimney, flicked in a basement window to see what was causing the fire and discovered the body of Mrs. Shetland. In the meantime he had told his son to run to a neighbor's and get him to call the firemen. Langhorne and Parkland firemen responded.

Mrs. Shetland apparently put up gallant fight. Her clothing was torn and she showed evidence of having been beaten on the back of the head.

Mrs. Shetland was a comely woman about five feet and three inches tall. She weighed approximately 35 pounds and when found wore a blue dress. Shelton is five feet, nine inches, and weighs about 135 pounds.

The Shetland family has resided at Knollbrook, a secluded property just off Arbutus avenue, Langhorne Terrace, about eight years. The property consists of 11 acres. The house is an attractive gray clapboard type. It sits far back from the old Lincoln Highway and is well secluded from the highway by tall evergreens planted close together and tall trees. The lawn slopes from the house toward the roadway. The entrance is through a short lane. The Shetlands have two children, a son and a daughter.

Police, after questioning both the lad and his father, took the boy back to the Shetland residence and had the boy re-enact the tragedy.

By this time, in addition to State Police, Detective Russo and Assistant District Attorney Curtin, there had arrived Bucks County Coroner J. Alfred Rigby. Residents in the vicinity had also been attracted by the fire and they stood by spellbound as they saw Shelton lead police over the ground, re-enacting the crime step by step.

The elder Shelton resides in Philadelphia but comes to Langhorne to do odd jobs. Aaron, Jr., spent Friday night at the home of his grandmother, Matilda Griffiths.

Mr. Shetland told the authorities that his wife called him at his Trenton office in the plant of the Essex Rubber Co. about 10.15 a. m., and told him of the occurrence of finding the boy upstairs. She also telephoned her daughter in Philadelphia. This was about 10.15 a. m.

Dr. George S. Weinstein, of Richardson avenue, Langhorne, was called to the scene and pronounced the woman dead. The body was removed to an undertaking establishment at Bellevue and Gilliam avenues, Langhorne, where Coroner J. Alfred Rigby supervised an autopsy.

Shetland, summoned by his wife's telephone call, arrived home after the fire had been extinguished. He is a former superintendent of the non-producing departments of SKF Industries, Inc., Philadelphia, and was employed by the Budd Co. before going into the rubber industry. A son, Arnold E. Shetland, lives at 3225 Decatur street, Mayfair, while a daughter, Mrs. Clarence Duffany, resides at 3502 Hartell street, in the same section of Philadelphia. Four grandchildren also survive. Mrs. Shetland was a prominent member of Langhorne Sorosis, and during the recent war served as Langhorne air observation post.

There will be a private service at R. L. Horner's funeral home this afternoon at two o'clock, the Rev. Herbert Satcher, Cheltenham P. E. Church, officiating. Burial in Somerset.

Shetland declared that he had known the suspect for several years. "The boy has been well brought up," he said, "and I had the deepest trust in him. I just can't understand his doing this. I feel terribly sorry for his people."

Police pointed out that the murderer was able to drag Mrs. Shetland all the way around the exterior of the house without being seen because the structure sets back nearly 100 yards from Old Lincoln Highway and is screened from the road by heavy foliage.

The suspect, they said, also was being questioned about a blaze that destroyed the Shetlands' tool shed three weeks ago.

Shelton will probably be given a hearing this afternoon.

A VIVID PERSONALITY CHASES THAT PALE, LISTLESS FEELING

Myrna Loy is as vivacious as she is lovely.

By Helen Follett

There are women who live in an atmosphere of splendid vitality. They get life from the full measure of zest and enjoyment. They are highly energized, find interesting work to do; that keeps them young through the years. They have charm and personality and, blessed with intelligence, they present a picture that is pleasing to the eye.

The secret of all this is courage, plus a mind that is not only alert and healthy, but which is constantly learning, learning how to get along happily with one's family, one's friends, the clerks at the store, the woman next door.

Vigorous Type
The vigorous type of woman never feels sorry for herself, no matter what happens. She does not demand attention. If her old man sits all evening with his nose in a book, she reads, too. She carries on gallantly. She is a good soldier. It is a pity that more women do not realize how important it is to direct their emotional lives, to direct their thoughts along pleasant lines.

Morbidly Destructive
A morbid state of mind is an agent that destroys good looks, has a devastating effect upon the organs of the body. Many young women suffer from this affliction. They are listless, their eyes are dull, complexion pale.

It should be the ambition of every woman to have a vivid personality. That can't be done if one whines and complains. Troubles and disappointments come into everyone's life. They have to be endured. Give way to them, brood about them, and you might as well give up the good-looks fight.

Some women enjoy nothing so much as dragging out sorrows of many years past, going over them, talking about them. It is sheer madness. Forget the yesterdays, unless they were pleasant ones. Live today. Live splendidly.

Church Wedding Occurs Here Saturday Afternoon

Miss Dora Corradetti, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Victor Corradetti, 1510 Trenton avenue, was united in marriage Saturday at 2.30 p. m. in the Presbyterian Church of Our Saviour, to Mr. Vincent S. Cordisco, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Cordisco, 11 Lincoln avenue. The officiating clergyman was the pastor of the church, the Rev. Andrew G. Solla.

With her father giving her in marriage the bride made her way to the altar as Mrs. Andrew G. Solla played the bridal march. Mrs. Solla was also accompanist for Mrs. John Messanelli, who sang "Because."

The bridal gown was entrain. The beaded bodice was of satin, and the long pointed sleeves and skirt of marquisette. Her fingertip veil of English tulle with trim of lace was held by a heart-shaped beaded tiara. She wore white corded silk slippers, and carried enla lilacs.

A trio of young women attended the bride, namely Miss Clementina Carabelline, Pond street, as maid of honor; and the Misses Vilma Viviani, Trenton avenue, and Loretta Pirri, Adams street, as bridesmaids. The maid of honor wore a blue gown, and the two bridesmaids pink. The gowns had broad bodices with sweetheart necklines and three-quarter length sleeves. Net skirts reached to the floor. All three wore white silk corded slippers; real pink roses in their hair, and carried bouquets of pink roses and blue delphinium. The maid of honor's bouquet had a pink bow; and those of the bridesmaids blue bows.

Mr. John Cordisco, Jr., attended his brother as best man; ushers were Mr. Emanuele Coradetti, Trenton avenue, brother of the bride, and Mr. Joseph Weber, North Cedar street, and ring bearer, John Gir-otti, Pond street.

Prior to the ceremony luncheon was served at the Coradetti residence for members of the bridal party and their families. The reception at seven p. m. took place in Mutual Aid Hall, guests numbering 200. The couple are spending a week at Niagara Falls, N. Y. For the journey Mrs. Cordisco wore a two-piece suit of poudre blue, white hat and accessories, and a corsage of white carnations. They will reside temporarily at Bristol Terrace II.

was chosen to represent nearly 20,000 Junior Red Cross members before the adult gathering.

Junior Red Cross delegates will conduct their own convention, with adult visitors restricted to the balcony. Among international guests attending Wednesday's banquet will be Miss Jean E. Browne, Toronto, Canada, national director of the Canadian Junior Red Cross; Mrs. Forest L. Yoder, Quito, Ecuador, second vice-president of the Ecuadorian Red Cross and a member of the board of governors of the League of Red Cross Societies; Col. Antonio R. Silva, San Juan, Puerto Rico, manager of the Puerto Rico Red Cross and director of the Puerto Rico Junior Red Cross, and Mrs. Silva, and Mrs. Evelyn E. Cady, Honolulu, T. H., director of the Hawaiian Junior Red Cross.

Keynote address at the first business session Tuesday afternoon will be given by Livingston L. Blair, national Red Cross vice-chairman for school and college activities. Mr. Blair recently returned from a survey of Junior Red Cross work in Europe and his talk is expected to deal with that topic.

A steering committee of 20 youths, who were selected by Red Cross chapters as delegates, will conduct all Junior Red Cross business sessions. This committee will appoint officers from its ranks for the various sessions, and also will name the chairman and members of resolutions, program and recommendations committees in a similar manner.

Delegates at the opening session will be officially greeted by Robert M. Wessel, Cheltenham High School, Elkins Park, a member of the Southeastern Pennsylvania Chapter's Junior Red Cross.

Thursday afternoon has been reserved for a sightseeing trip to historic points of interest in Philadelphia. The program will end with the Junior Red Cross delegates joining the adult representatives Thursday evening at "International Night" and at the final plenary session Friday morning.

Farm families of Pennsylvania in 1945 consumed 21 million pounds of chicken they raised, and sold 136 million pounds. Chickens eaten were valued at $6,500,000 and those sold were worth almost $42,500,000.

Miss Y. Di Lorenzo Is Wed to A. Conti

street. She was attractively gowned in white chiffon, featuring an old-fashioned draped effect for the bodice, with orange blossoms clustered to hold the material as it draped gracefully from near the shoulder. The skirt draped likewise, was also caught with orange blossoms, and six ruffles of self-material appeared near the hem-line. The hoop skirt swept to a long train. Sleeves tapered over her hands. She wore a triple cluster of orange blossoms on her hair, from which fell a veil of illusion. Slippers were of satin. Approaching the altar she carried a white Prayer book on which rested two white orchids with showery of small flowers flowing from them. For the recessional she carried a crescent-shaped bouquet of white roses with a white orchid in the center.

Miss Tanna Culura, Dorrance street, the maid of honor, and Miss Rachel DiVita, Dorrance street, cousin of the groom, the bridesmaid, wore floor-length gowns of blue stardust chiffon, the skirts being of blue style. The gowns had draped bodices and short sleeves. With these were worn detachable sleeves pointed over the hands and ruffled top and bottom. Blue slippers completed their costumes. Clusters of blue flowers appearing on either side of their heads were connected by sprays of silver leaves, and the headresses had illusion veiling. The two carried crescent-shaped bouquets of white gladioli. Rose Marie DiLorenzo, Washington street, a niece of the bride, served as flower girl. She wore a white chiffon gown patterned like that of the bride, but minus a train. White roses were used to set off the draping. She wore detachable sleeves, and small clusters of white roses in her hair. Her crescent-shaped bouquet was also of white gladioli.

Member of the St. Luke's Faculty and Miss Gall Wed

CROYDON, June 17—A member of the faculty of St. Luke's Lutheran Day School, Mr. Erwin H. Weinrich, Croydon, took as his bride yesterday afternoon at the hour of five, Miss Ann Elizabeth Gall, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Gall, 106 Taylor street, Bristol. The Rev. Karl Weinrich, Altamont, Ill., a brother of the groom, performed the ceremony in St. Luke's Lutheran Church, the bride being escorted to the altar by her father.

The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Weinrich, of Keystone, Iowa, and his father was organist for the occasion.

Members of the bridal party were inclusive of: Maid of honor, Miss Mildred Gall, Taylor street, Bristol, sister of the bride; bridesmaids, all cousins of the bride, the Misses Mary Gall, Pauline Pavel and Ruth Lukac, of Garfield, N. J.; best man, Mr. John Gall, North Tonawanda, N. Y., brother of the bride; ushers, Messrs. John Hambling, Walter Wurthmann, and Reinhart Piell, of Croydon.

The former Miss Gall wore an attractive gown of white net. The neckline was round, and the gown featured shoulder and hip ruffles of net. The model buttoned down the back to the waistline, and sleeves tapered over her hands. The full skirt swept to a long train. Her finger-tip veil of net was enhanced with orange blossoms. Her arm bouquet was composed of white carnations.

The quartet of attendants of the bride wore pastel-toned gowns of net over tulle, these being floor-length. The gowns featured bishop sleeves, and the illusion necklines were outlined in scalloped tulle. They wore crownless picture hats to match their individual costumes. Miss Mildred Gall was attired in yellow and wore white slippers; Miss Mary Gall wore orchid; Miss Pavel, Nile green; and Miss Lukac, pink. The latter three wore silver slippers. All carried arm bouquets of carnations in varied hues.

The reception at seven took place on the lawn of St. Luke's parsonage.

Leaving for a two weeks journey to Niagara Falls, N. Y., the bride was attired in a peach-toned dress embroidered in black, black straw picture hat, black patent bag and slippers, white gloves, and wore a corsage of white carnations. The newlyweds will make their home at Washington avenue and State Road, here.

Mrs. Weinrich is a graduate of Bristol high school, and has been employed as a bookkeeper at the Spencer Furniture Store, Bristol. Mr. Weinrich, a graduate of Concordia Teachers College, River Forest, Ill., is teaching at St. Luke's School.

The maid of honor and bridesmaids received sterling silver bracelets from the bride; and to the best man and ushers, Mr. Weinrich gave wallets.

Today's Quiet Moment

By The Rev. Woodrow W. Kern
Pastor
Trevoise Methodist Church

We thank Thee, O God, for the Christian family. We give Thee thanks for Christian parents and for the intangible influence they had in helping to mould the destinies of our lives. May we recognize the Christian virtue in the sacrifice of a father or mother for children in order that they may have the necessary opportunities in preparation for facing a world where struggle and decision is the order of the day. Preserve us as parents from being over-bearing, dogmatic, and dictatorial with our children. May we never be too proud to learn the virtues which little children teach and express in thoughtless and innocent ways. We pray that we may ever be living examples for all children. May we lead them to Christ and to His Church. Amen.

The bride was attired in a gown of white dotted Swiss with a high neckline, cape sleeves, and long full skirt. A Juliet headpiece trimmed with seed pearls and fingertip veil, long white gloves and white slippers were worn. She carried white roses.

Miss Elizabeth Poston was maid of honor, and Miss Rita Vincent, bridesmaid. They wore gowns of pale green cotton, fashioned with high necklines, pointed collars, cap sleeves, low cut bodices trimmed with covered buttons, and edged with a wide flounce and large bows at the back, long full skirts. Silver slippers and long yellow gloves were worn. They carried white gaisies and baby breath. They wore white daisies in their hair.

Mr. Robert Leigh, brother-in-law of the groom, served as best man, and Mr. Richard Rossbauer as usher. The bride was given in marriage by her uncle, Mr. Paul Stuhltrager. Mrs. Underwood, mother of the bride, selected a dress of black shantung trimmed with pink, black hat and pink gloves; and a corsage of pink rosebuds. Mrs. Lombardo, mother of the groom, chose a pale grey crepe dress and white accessories. She wore a corsage of white gardenias.

For her wedding trip the former Miss Stuhltrager selected a grey shantung dress with white accessories. The newlyweds will visit Niagara Falls, N. Y., and spend some time in the Pocono Mountains. A reception took place at Fossbender's Restaurant, Lincoln Highway, 40 guests attending.

VOLTZ-TEXACO TRIUMPHS OVER STATE HIGHWAY IX

Bristol Boys Score 13 Hits For Their 12 to 4 Victory

LUDWIG LEADS

Samsel Had 13 Strike-Outs But Was Wild At Times

In a Trenton Industrial League game played on Leedom's field, the Voltz-Texaco nine battled out a 12-4 victory over the State Highway, yesterday afternoon.

The Bristol boys had 13 hits while the Jerseyites had 10. Barney Ludwig led the gammen with the stick, getting three out of five while every player, with the exception of "Teddie" Tosti, had at least one bingle.

"Benny" Samsel had 13 strike-outs for Voltz-Texaco but kept getting himself into hot water with his wildness. Benny walked nine batters but when his mates scored five runs in the fourth and two more in the fifth, he had a comfortable margin to work with.

Bates led the visitors with the stick, getting three hits in five times at the plate.

The Voltz-Texaco team plays in Trenton on Tuesday evening and will play American Steel on Leedom's field next Friday evening. On next Sunday, the oilers will meet the State Highway nine in a double-header, first game starting at two o'clock.

CROYDON "VETS" WIN OVER PHILA. NINE

CROYDON, June 17—A six-run rally in the eighth inning gave the Croydon Veterans of Foreign Wars, Schumacher Post, a 7-4 win over the Philadelphia Ukrainians, yesterday afternoon, on the State Road field.

The victory also chalked up another hill win for "Herm" Pluma who relieved Joe Berry in the seventh inning when the "Vets" were trailing, 2-1. The Ukrainians scored two more runs off Pluma in the first half of the eighth but the Schumacher Post team staged its uprising in their half of the frame.

Frank Murphy buried the sixth ward aggregation and gave the Ramblers but three hits and struck out six batters. He was aided by home runs from the bats of "Ed" Capriotti and "Easy" Mama and triples by "Tommy" Strong and "Lou" Mari.

"Moe" Cauce had two of the losers' three hits.

CHAMP "CHICK SEXER"

VANCOUVER, Wash. (INS)—Ellie Granlund, a "chick sexer" can separate 500 to 700 cockerels and pullets when she is just "taking it easy"—and that is a lot of chicks in an eight-hour day. Her unusual job stems from the fact that poultry raisers like to have their day-old chicks separated for ease of handling. Chick-sexing is a Japanese invention introduced on this continent ten years ago.

ROBSON BOOKED AMONG STARTERS, SPEEDWAY RACES

Surprise Winner at Indianapolis To Race at South Langhorne

SANCTIONED BY AAA

Test Runs Will Start on Tuesday Afternoon June 25th

SOUTH LANGHORNE, June 17—George Robson, surprise winner of the annual Memorial Day 500-mile auto race at Indianapolis, will be among the starters when big car competition is revived after a four-year lapse at the Speedway here on Sunday, June 30.

Jimmy Frattone announced the entry of the 35-year-old Los Angeles driver, who became the current kingpin of the speedways through his Indianapolis triumph although he has never before won a major race, for the postwar revival of racing at the Lincoln Highway plant.

The high-powered cars will roll for the first time since wartime restrictions stopped activities there in 1942. The June 30 revival will be an AAA-sanctioned 100-mile national championship, first such event scheduled for a dirt track since the end of the war.

Robson, who won the Indianapolis classic in the fourth fastest time ever recorded, along with $33,500 in cash and an airplane trip around the world, is expected here at least a week before the race.

Test runs are scheduled daily at Langhorne from 3 p. m. to 6 p. m., daily starting Tuesday, June 25, and running through Friday, June 28. Official qualifying trials will be staged Saturday, June 29, starting at 2 o'clock. The public will be admitted free to the test runs, with a nominal charge for the qualifying tests, at 2 miles or twice around the Langhorne track, fastest dirt oval in the world. Only the fastest 14 will be eligible for the 100-mile championship race the next day.

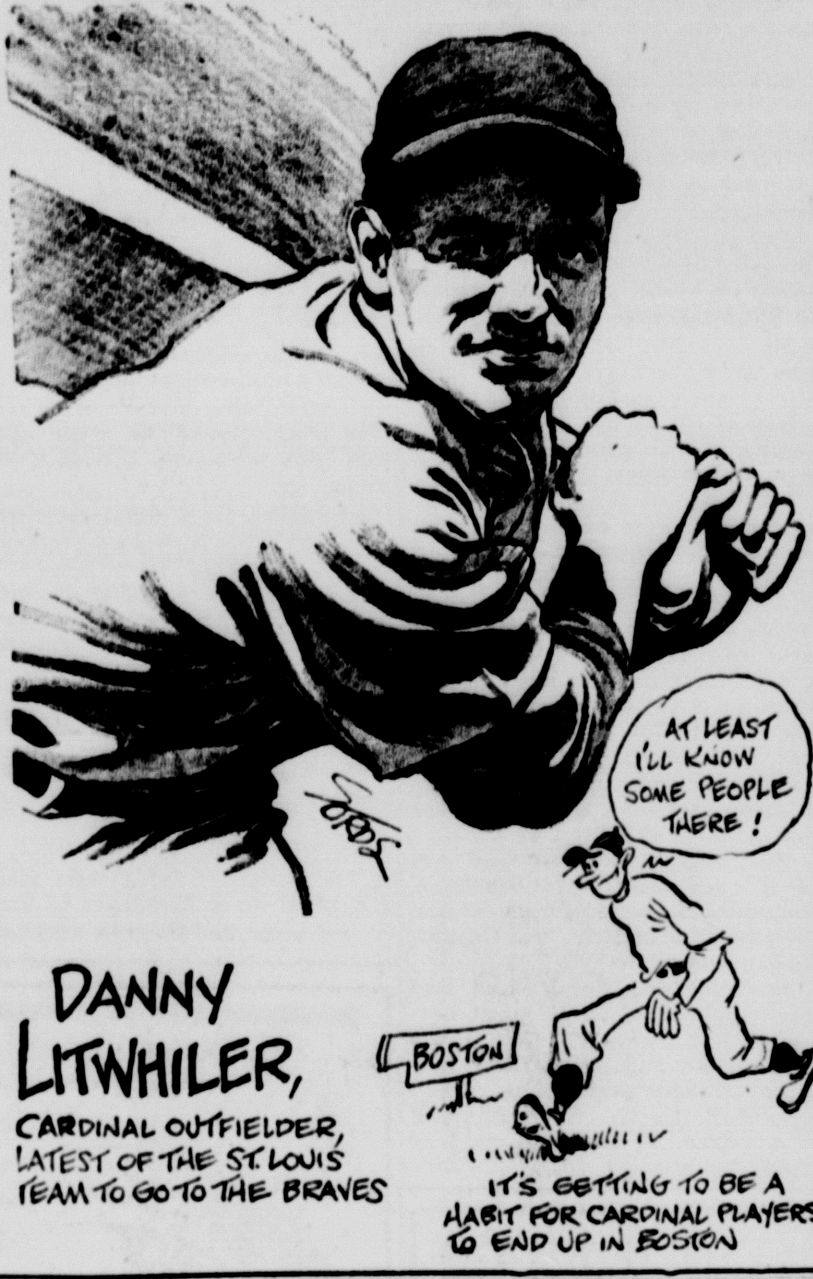

Entries received in addition to Robson include Maurice Rose, in his Blue Crown Sparkplug Special; Rex Mays, Duke Nalon and Mel Hansen. Rose was co-winner with Floyd Davis at Indianapolis in 1941 and Mays was national champion the same year.

Mays, Nalon, Rose and Hansen were all forced out of this year's Indianapolis race, Rose by a spectacular smash-up in which he miraculously escaped serious injury, the others by motor or other car failures.
